A "Star's" Demands.

While traveling with the object of gathering together types of African tribes for their exploitation in an exhibition an agent found a Herculean specimen of the Sudanese warrior. He was determined to get him at any price. At first the warrior refused flatly to go with him, but when the agent told him he might demand what-ever sum he pleased he wavered. Finally, after long consultation with his friends, he consented, through an interpreter, to accept the engagement, but added, "I must have my wife's expenses paid while I am away." "All right," said the agent. "And I must have all my mother's expenses paid." "All right," said the agent. "And I must have money for my children." "All right. How much do you want?" "And ten months is a long time." "I know it. Name your own figure." At this the warrior, with a cunning gleam in his eyes, as if he were demanding a king's ransom, named a sum which in our money amounted to a little less than $15. "And he nearly fainted," said the agent in conclusion, "when I told him he could have it."

Halley, the Astronomer.

At fifteen years of age Edmund Halley was the captain of St. Paul's school and already an accomplished astronomer. At twenty-two he was elected a fellow of the Royal Society, and before he was thirty he had encouraged Newton to produce his "Principia" and published at his own expense that famous work. In which Newton gave to the world his great discovery of the law of gravitation. For eight years Halley was editor of the "Transactions of the Royal Society," and he was only forty-seven when Oxford made him Savilian professor of astronomy. At fifty-nine he observed and predicted the circumstances of the total solar eclipse of 1715, and at sixty-four he became the astronomer royal of Great Britain. In his seventy-fifth year he announced to the Royal Society that he had made 1,500 lunar observations. He was then in receipt of a salary of £100 a year, with no allowance for an assistant.

Cheerfulness.

Cheerfulness is the great cure. If you are not cheerful already try to acquire the habit. It will not require much trying either. Accordingly as one likes or dislikes beings and things he becomes cheerful or the opposite. The temptation to dislike animate or inanimate objects lies in wait for every one. Be on your guard. You can drive it off by liking a bird or a flower.

Hate never made any man happy. But in order to be unhappy one does not need to be a hater. Simple dislike will sour all the milk in the cecanot of cheerfulness. Your choice is not restricted. If you do not like a man or do not love a woman, why, then, like a dog. Even a cat may be an inspirer of cheerfulness.

Liking is a sun which can make even an iceberg nature respondent with the aura of cheerfulness.—Boston Globe.

An Alligator's Nest.

Alligators' nests resemble haycocks more than anything else to which they can be compared. They average about four feet in height and five feet in diameter and are constructed of grasses and herbage. First the mother gator deposits one layer of eggs on a mortar-like floor and, having covered this with a stratum of mud and herbage about eight inches thick, lays another set of eggs upon that, and so on to the top, there being commonly from 100 to 200 eggs in a nest. With their tails the parents then beat down the tall grass and weeds to prevent the approach of unseen enemies. The female watches her eggs until they are hatched by the heat of the sun and then takes her brood under her own care, defending them and providing for their subsistence.

Antiquity of Wrestling.

Probably the first authentic record of a wrestling match is in A. D. 1222, when chivalry on the European continent was undergoing a change for the better. During the reign of Henry III. of England a match took place in St. Giles' field, London, between citizens of Westminster and the city of London proper. Wrestling was, however, popular as a pastime in England at a much earlier period, and from that country many of the different styles originated.

Unappreciated Effort.

"That man hasn't any sense of humor," said Mr. Growcher. "Why, he is always trying to amuse his friends." "That's just it. If he had any sense of humor he would see that there is nothing funny in interrupting a man's work to tell him funny stories."—Washington Star.

Lydia's Legacy

A Parrot That First Brought Trouble, Then a Husband

By CLARISSA MACKIE.

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

Lydia Thorne read the letter three times before she fully understood its meaning. Couched in the heavy phraseology of a country lawyer, it announced that the widow of her uncle, Sidney Ransom, had died a short time ago, leaving to Lydia a legacy. The lawyer went on to state that, although Mrs. Ransom had never seen the niece of her husband, she had been greatly impressed by reports of her kind and amiable disposition, and so to her loving care she left—her pet bird, a parrot.

To Lydia, who detested parrots as noisy, ungraceful creatures, this legacy fell as a calamity in her quiet, well ordered existence. She scarcely read the badly written postscript, which stated that the remainder of Mrs. Ransom's estate had gone to a favorite nephew of her own.

The parrot arrived in a crate.

There was a tall perching stand for Polly in the crate with the cage, and the parrot was soon at home on the perch, a chain secured around one leg and fastened to the stand.

Lydia found her new companion the source of much amusement for several days. He learned to call her by name, and at times it almost seemed as if she had a human companion in her lonely life.

Her house was situated at the end of the long village street, and few came to her save when there was dressmaking to be done, but Stillwater was near a large city and most of the women brought their clothes in the ready made shops, so Lydia did not have much to do.

It was the spring of the year, and Lydia worked much in her garden. Many times Polly sat near on her perch, shrilly defiant of the wild birds that hovered curiously about him.

Lydia was digging among her pansy plants one morning, transplanting the little green shoots from one bed to another.

"You're growing old, old, old," shrieked Polly, with sudden vindictiveness, and a dreary foreboding in his tone that startled his new mistress.

She turned toward him in his direction. Lydia Thorne was no longer young, but she still retained a certain sweet youthfulness of expression, and her brown hair showed not one thread of gray. Perhaps it was because her heart would never grow old, for at thirty-eight Lydia was younger than many women at eighteen. She never thought of her age, but now, when Polly repeated himself in a sudden fury of words, she felt that they must be true.

"You're growing old, old, old," said the everlastingly hills. Never mind, Lydia shall marry Stephen, and then every thing will be all right. Oh, gee!" Polly made a savage peck at a saucy blue jay who had ventured close to his perch and sent the bandit bird screaming to the top of a tall elm tree.

Polly scratched his ear reflectively. "Poor old Stephen!"

Lydia was interested. "Who is Stephen?" she asked.

"Stephen's a fool. He must marry Lydia. Then everything will be all right," cackled the bird.

"What nonsense!" cried Lydia indignantly. "What does the bird mean?"

She wondered often after that, for Polly seemed to find great comfort in speaking of the unknown Stephen, and, through Polly, Lydia learned that Stephen was a good boy and a credit to his family and if he would only go and see Lydia he would at once fall in love and marry her.

One day came a letter from a cousin in another village inviting Lydia to come and spend a week with her, and, having heard of Polly's arrival, she extended permission for Lydia to bring her legacy.

This Lydia was loath to do, for the parrot's cage was heavy and most unwieldy, and she did not really care enough for the bird to carry it about the country. Nevertheless none of her neighbors seemed willing to undertake its care, so one bright morning found Lydia and Polly speeding cityward in the railroad train.

The parrot proved a diverting companion, and it seemed as if they had scarcely started before the train drew into the noisy station where she had to change cars.

Lydia was walking through the long building, carrying the heavy cage in her already tired arms, when Polly set up a violent outcry.

"Stephen! Stephen! Oh, Stephen, wait for Lydia!" he shrieked frantically.

A man crossing diagonally in front of them paused and looked curiously at the parrot.

"That's a good boy, Stephen. Marry Lydia and everything will be all right. Such a handsome Polly!" The bird was fluttering to and fro, and Lydia found difficulty in holding the cage upright.

The stranger approached and lifted his hat. "I am sure Polly is an old friend of mine," he said courteously.

"He recognizes me, and—"

Tired Lydia flashed indignant eyes upon him. "Sir!" she said coldly.

The man turned away with reddening cheeks. He had a nice face, Lydia admitted to herself, but she had been brought up to beware of fascinating strangers, and this individual was the nearest approach to a fascinating stranger Lydia had ever chanced to meet. Polly added tumult to confusion.

"Stephen! Stephen! Be a good boy—marry Lydia and everything will be all right!" he screamed.

Lydia was almost hysterical as the stranger paused again and thrust a finger between the wires of the cage. Polly clung to the finger, crooning softly. With a sudden movement Lydia thrust the cage in the man's arms.

"Take him if you want him! I'm sure I don't!" And then, unheeding his sharp exclamation of surprise, she darted away in the hurrying crowd. She was quite breathless when she reached the home of the cousin that afternoon and found it difficult to explain the absence of Polly.

"I left him behind," she said evasively, and with this explanation Mrs. Brent had to be content.

During the next few days Lydia wondered what had become of her parrot. She was ashamed of her impatience toward the stranger and thought somewhat ruefully that Any Susan Ransom would have considered her a shrew rather than a kind and amiable person had the good lady seen her ill temper on the day of her journey.

The second evening after her arrival as they sat at tea Mrs. Brent broke the silence that had fallen between them:

"Queer, wasn't it, that Susan Ransom should have left everything to Stephen when he don't need the money and just left you that parrot to take care of? Never saw Susan in your life, did you?"

"No," said Lydia, "but I used to write to Uncle Ransom, and then after he died I kept up a correspondence with Aunt Susan. I quite liked her too. She used to write about the parrot, but I never dreamed she would leave it to me. I never liked parrots much."

"I guess you could have used some money," remarked Mrs. Brent, stirring her tea thoughtfully. "Stephen don't need any more'n he's got."

"Is Stephen the nephew?" faltered Lydia, with very pink cheeks. She was thinking of Polly's allusions to "Stephen."

"Of course—Stephen Wood. Queer you never knew his name. Susan thought a sight of him and nagged him day and night because he never got married. He's doing real well in the city—he's in the coal business and is making money hand over fist."

"Have you ever seen him?" asked Lydia in a queer voice.

"Land, yes! Good looking too. Tall and lean, with clean shaved face and bright blue eyes—colors up like a girl when he's embarrassed. He always seemed to think a lot of that parrot. I visited there once, you know. I should think he'd have wanted it. I'm disappointed you didn't bring it, Lydia. They say it's a very clever bird. I shall be in Stillwater before long, and I'll see him then."

Lydia was doubtful whether Mrs. Brent would ever see the parrot again, although Mr. Wood might return the bird to her if he knew where she might be found, for now she knew it was Stephen Wood who had stopped and spoken to her that day in the railway station.

After all, the visit did not turn out to be as enjoyable as Lydia had anticipated.

The little house seemed very lonely when Lydia returned to Stillwater.

May had come, and with it the smell of apple blossoms and young clover. Lydia leaned over the gate and watched the golden cloud of dust that preceded the rumbling stage. The evening train was in, and presently, after the stage had carried the mail to the postoffice, she would throw a shawl about her shoulders and go down after her newspaper and letters.

The stage rolled past. The driver waved his whip at her, and her gaze followed the vehicle down the long street into the village. She did not hear footsteps approaching from the opposite direction, and as she turned her head Polly's familiar voice broke harshly on the still air:

"Here we are, sir! Well, well! Be a good boy, Stephen, and marry Lydia!" Polly's voice died away in an indignant squawk as a strong hand reached in the cage and chastised him. It was Stephen Wood bringing Polly home.

"Mrs. Brent told me you had returned home, and so I have brought the bird back to you, Miss Thorne. I am sure you must have thought me impatient that day in the station. Of course you did not know me, but I recognized Polly's voice and should have made myself known to you at once."

"I was very rude to you," said Lydia gratefully as she opened the gate to admit him, "but I was very tired, and I was a little tired of Polly just then, and it all happened so suddenly. You understand?"

"Of course I understand. Polly is tiresome most of the time, but he has many good qualities. If he had not recognized me that day I would not have the pleasure of returning him to you," said Mr. Wood.

They sat down on the steps, and the man looked admiringly at Lydia, pink and glowing and sweet as one of the apple blossoms overhead.

"Be a good boy, Stephen, and marry Lydia, and everything will be all right," shrieked Polly suddenly, and there was such a note of prophecy in his raucous voice that Lydia's brown eyes fell before Stephen's steady blue ones, and this time Polly went un-baked.

Sonoma, May 21, 1910.

H. H. GRANICE, Editor.

Ten Counts in Favor of The Sewer Proposition.

Just one week from today will be submitted to the voters the proposition to bond the town for $20,000 for a septic tank sewer system. The proposition ought to carry for the following reasons:

First—The health and convenience of our people demand that Sonoma have a proper sewage system.

Second—The cost is within the means of the taxpayers without imposing an onerous tax levy upon them.

Third—The plans and specifications for the proposed sewer system have been prepared by a conservative engineer who thoroughly understands his business.

Fourth—The septic tank system to be voted upon can be laid down at one-half the cost of a tide-water outlet.

Fifth—The septic tank system if installed will answer all purposes for the present population of the town, but should public necessity demand a tide-water outlet on account of increase of population, or for any other cause, it can be used as an auxiliary to such a system.

Sixth—In order to keep in line with the other growing towns and cities of California and to secure our share of the thousands of home-seekers that are pouring into our favored State from the East, Sonoma must provide an up-to-date system of sewerage, because in these times of modern appliances for safe-guarding the public health home-seekers for the most part will avoid a sewerless, unsanitary town.

Seventh—To defeat the sewer bond proposition would create a bad impression abroad of Sonoma and its people for their non-progressive-ness.

Eighth—The town must be put in a sanitary condition to conform to our health laws, and a sewer system, such as that proposed for this city, it appears to us, is the best and most economical plan for complying with those laws.

Ninth—Sonoma has been growing rapidly the past two years and its people can no longer depend upon the primitive appliances of the past for carrying for its sewage. The cesspool of the old Sonoma, with its sparse population, should give way to a modern system of sewerage for the new Sonoma, with its rapidly increasing population, else this growth may be checked in its incipency.

Tenth—The installation of this proposed municipal improvement will advertise Sonoma far and wide as one of the progressive towns of Northern California. This in turn will attract home-seekers here. There will be a demand for residence sites and business locations in our midst, and the town will grow as it has never grown before.

Therefore, we appeal to the civic pride of our citizens, who are almost a unit in favor of a proposition that has secured the endorsement of the outgoing Board of City Trustees as well as those comprising the new Board, to make the majority in favor of the sewer bonds as nearly unanimous as possible.

Tree Falls on Man and Breaks His Right Leg.

W. J. Brown, a rancher on the Petaluma road, while chopping down a tree on his ranch on Friday of last week, met with a bad accident. Brown had chopped about one-half way through the body of the tree when it suddenly snapped. In endeavoring to get out of the way of the falling tree he was borne to the earth by one of its limbs and had his right leg broken near the ankle. He was brought into town and taken to the Leix Sanitarium for surgical aid. The fracture was a serious one and will lay the unfortunate man up for a long time.

Concert.

Next Tuesday evening, beginning at 8 o'clock, a fine program of song and organ music will be given in the Congregational Church. Among other choice numbers, Fanning's "Song of the Vikings" will be rendered by a strong chorus. Admission 25 cents.

Brevities.

Large quantities of unstacked hay in the fields was blown away and lost in the recent wind storm.

The Lewis water franchise will come up before the City Trustees at their regular monthly meeting in June.

Ryland's Have Narrow Escape.

During the height of the blow on Sunday night an immense pine tree on the private residence grounds of the late Mr. and Mrs. F. Duhring, Sr., now occupied by Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Ryland, went down before the gale and fell with a loud crash on the roof of the dwelling. The sleeping apartment occupied by the Rylands was badly wrecked by the spreading branches of the tree and had it not been that the house was doubled roofed both would have been killed. As it was they had a narrow escape and got the scare of their lives. The tree that caused the damage was planted by Mrs. Ryland's father fifty-six years ago and was not a sapling by any means.

Card of Thanks.

The committee on entertainment for the Christian Endeavor convention desires to express its sincere thanks, and the thanks of the Endeavor, to those persons who so generously threw open their homes to the visiting delegates, to those who helped in the provision of food for the Saturday meals and to the girls who assisted in serving.

Some Alcohol Questions

Is alcohol a tonic? No! Does it make the blood pure? No! Does it strengthen the nerves? No! Is Ayer's Sarsaparilla a tonic? Yes! Does it make the blood pure? Yes! Does it strengthen the nerves? Yes! Is it the only Sarsaparilla entirely free from alcohol? Yes! Ask your doctor about this non-alcoholic medicine. If he approves, your confidence will be complete. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.

Dull boys! Dull girls! Dull men! Dull women! Heavy-headed! Downhearted! All very often due to constipation! Yet the cure is so easy—Ayer's Pills. Ask your doctor.

Walter F. Price for State Senator

Walter F. Price of Santa Rosa, (incumbent), announces his candidacy at the primary election on August 16th for the Republican nomination of State Senator. Senator Price, since entering upon his duties at the State Capital four years ago, has done much for the people of his district and has proved a hard-working and faithful servant of the people of his district. It is true he has been criticised at times for voting for certain measures not approved by some of his fellow citizens, but these have been the exception and not the rule. Taking it all in all, he has probably accomplished more for Sonoma county during the sessions of the Legislature than any of his predecessors. Although in one sense a strict party man Senator Price has not allowed partisanship to sway him in securing wholesome and beneficial laws for his constituents. He has endeavored by his vote on every measure to do his level best for the interests of the whole people of his section, and in consequence is justly popular in his Senatorial district.

Trial of Ex-Supervisor Button.

The trial of ex-Supervisor I. J. Button, indicted by the Grand Jury last year on a charge of presenting fraudulent claims against Sonoma County, has been set by Judge Seawell for June 1st. The indictment was brought about by Mr. Button "O King" certain road bills contracted by his road overseers while he was serving as Supervisor. His friends claim he is a victim of circumstances. At any rate the indicted Supervisor says he has committed no crime and is confident of acquittal.

THE GREAT BLOW

SUNDAY NIGHT.

It Was the Most Disastrous Visitation Ever Recorded in This Valley.

Sunday night was one of the wildest and most terrifying ever experienced in this valley of sunshine and zephyrs. Shortly after sundown a stiff north wind set in and shifting slightly to the eastward by ten o'clock the blow had assumed the proportions of a hurricane. Barns, roofs of houses, out-buildings, fences and trees went down before the gale with a terrific crash and for ten hours pandemonium reigned in the quiet, peaceful valley of Sonoma from the shores of San Pablo bay to Los Guilicos valley, embracing a strip of territory twenty miles long and seven miles wide.

Thousands upon thousands of dollars damage was done and one life is known to have been lost. The hurricane lashed the fruit trees in the orchards to fury, stripping them almost bare of fruit and leaves and when the gale had spent its fury at about nine o'clock Monday morning every one realized that the fruit crop—cherries, grapes, peaches, pears, apples, apricots—would be, for the most part, a total loss.

So terrorizing was the tempest that all thought of sleep was banished from the minds of our people and few closed their eyes during the night. Many associated the visitation with Halley's comet, which hung low in the eastern heavens when the hurricane was at its height, and all wondered when and how it would end.

When daylight broke one dare not venture out of doors on account of wrecked electric wires and the crashing of trees, which were leveled in all directions.

Finally, when the storm had abated so as to allow one to venture out of doors with safety, it became apparent that a vast amount of damage had been done to houses, barns, fencing and, more than all, to growing crops of all kinds, which were all but wiped out by the force of the gale.

About midnight the $15,000 county residence of Senator Kearns of Salt Lake City, located in the upper part of the valley, caught fire, but fortunately the flames were subdued with slight loss.

On the Bacigalupi ranch near Agua Caliente, Mrs. Eda Polloni lost her life by becoming entangled in a mesh of live electric wires. The storm aside from being local in aspect was a most remarkable one as nothing like it has ever been recorded in this valley and in all the State for that matter.

Whether it came and whether it went is beyond the philosophy of local weather experts, but after the blow had spent its force, the valley was as calm and serene as ever.

The loss to growing crops, which was almost general throughout the valley, will run into many thousands of dollars and for the first time in its history will be recorded this year a partial failure of crops of all kinds if we expect hay.

Death of a Little Girl.

Mary, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Beltrami of San Francisco, who have been sojourning in our valley the past week, died at Agua Caliente last Tuesday, after an illness of several months. The little girl, who was aged four and a half years, had contracted pneumonia in the metropolis last winter and was brought here by the fond parents in the hopes of saving her life by a change of climate. The child, however, was beyond medical aid and passed peacefully away in the arms of its mother. The funeral took place Thursday, the interment being in Mountain Cemetery.

Fell and Broke Leg

Frank Surcher of San Francisco, a guest at Ben Meyers Embarcadero resort, on Thursday morning last slipped and falling heavily to the ground broke his right leg at the ankle. He was put into a buggy and taken to Dr. Leix's sanitarium, where the limb was set. The injury will lay him up for several weeks.

PERSONAL AND SOCIAL NOTES.

Doings of the Various Sets in Both Town and Valley.

J. Lucio was a local visitor in San Francisco Sunday.

A. Lutgens made a business trip to the metropolis Thursday.

J. A. Kinsella spent Sunday in San Rafael visiting friends and relatives.

Mrs. Cutter came up from San Francisco Sunday and spent the day with relatives here.

Mrs. A. Kerner and daughter Helen made a pleasant trip to the metropolis Sunday morning.

Fred. T. Duhring and Robert Poppe attended the jubilee in Berkeley the fore part of the week.

A comet party was given by Mrs. Kate Murray and Mrs. Agnes Dowd at Seven Oaks near El Verano last Saturday and Sunday.

The opening of the Mervyn Hotel in Glen Ellen has been announced to take place next Saturday evening, May 28th.

Bruce Painter, principal of the High School and his assistant teachers, Misses Moore and Trueblood, were in attendance the past week at the jubilee to commemorate the fiftieth anniversary of the University of California. They returned home Wednesday evening.

"Uncle Rube," staged at Union Hall with local talent under the auspices of the Woman's Club last Saturday night, brought out a crowded house. The characters in the play were well sustained and the entertainment, which was given for the benefit of the Carnival here in July, was a success in every way.

The Comet Scare Now Over.

The speculation as to what effect the passing of Halley's comet between the earth and sun would have on this mundane sphere is now over. No phenomena whatever was observed and when the event took place in the evening of the 18th inst., old Sol beamed down on us as of old and the comet's tail passed harmlessly over the earth, much to the relief of many nervous and superstitious people, who associated dire calamity with the approach of the vagrant heavenly body, which apparently has no designs on this earth or its fellows in the starry firmament. The comet, which has been visible the past two weeks in the eastern horizon, will not again be seen until next Tuesday, if the night be a clear one, as there will be a total eclipse of the moon on that evening. Sky-gazers must look for the comet in the western skies.

CARD OF THANKS

We take this method of thanking the people of Sonoma Valley for their kind sympathy in the hour of our bereavement caused by the death of our little daughter, Mary, who passed away at 2 p. m. on May 17, at the age of 4 1/2 years.

THE BEAR FLAG

POLE IS NO MORE.

Goes Down in Sunday Night's Gale and is Broken Beyond Repair.

The historical Bear Flag pole, occupying a commanding site on the northeast corner of the Plaza, went down before the gale last Sunday night and was shattered beyond repair.

The ancient flag staff was erected over 64 years ago and from its halyards was unfurled the breeze the historical emblem of the Bear Flag party, which made a descent upon the town from Napa, headed by Ide, Coombs and other adventurous spirits, in 1846.

For many years the old flag pole, which had weathered many a winter's blast, has been one of the many ancient relics of the town associated as it was with the stirring times of the early history of Alta California. Its demolition by the freakish and unlooked for windstorm of Sunday night is an irreparable loss to old Sonoma, whose people were justly proud of it and the early day associations which it represented.

Solemn Services at the Catholic Church.

Sunday, May 22nd, special services will be held in the Catholic Church at 10:45 a. m., consisting of Solemn High Mass and sermon, the occasion being the blessing of the new art glass window placed over the main altar. This window is in honor of St. Francis, the patron of the church, and is a big factor in enhancing the beauty of the church. The sacred ministers of the Mass will be Father Seson, celebrant, Father Clifford, deacon, Father Comerford, sub-deacon.

Father Robert Seson is renowned as a preacher and singer and wherever he goes he has crowds of ardent admirers. The choir will render special music.

Engagement Announced.

The engagement of Miss Ethel M. Stoddard of Berkeley to Bruce H. Painter of this place, has been announced. The wedding will take place at the Berkeley home of the parents of the bride-to-be on June 15th. Miss Stoddard is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Stoddard, residing on Grant avenue in the college town. She is said to be a charming girl and a talented musician. Mr. Painter, who will lead her to the altar, is the principal of our High School and a graduate of the University of California.

The young couple after the nuptial knot is tied and a brief honeymoon will make their home in Sonoma.

Sonoma vs. San Francisco Juveniles

The juveniles of San Francisco will cross bats with the Sonoma base ball team tomorrow afternoon (Sunday) at the race track grounds. As the Sonoma Club must pay half of the visiting team's fare, an admission fee of twenty-five and ten cents will be charged to defray expenses. The locals will wear their uniforms for the first time Sunday. Come and help the boys along.

The teams will line up as follows:

Sonoma.	Position.	Juveniles
Poppe	Catcher	Al Waters
Jansen	Pitcher	A. Lee
Greely	First base	Lund
Rail	Second base	Hogan
Reed	Third base	Praizer
Nest	Short stop	R. Glendon
Lutgens	Left field	Stevenson
Volquardsen	Center field	Robert Taylor
Taylor	Right field	Schoenfeld

The base ball game played last Sunday at Boyes Springs between the Kenwood and El Verano nines was won by the latter, the score being 9 to 8. The Kenwood boys are showing marked improvement in their playing.

Fochetti-Quartaroli Nuptials.

The wedding of Miss Leonora Quartaroli and Mr. Julius W. Fochetti, whose engagement was announced in these columns last month, took place Sunday last at the home of the bride's parents in this city. Father Comerford of St. Francis Church performed the ceremony, which made this popular and handsome couple man and wife. The wedding was essentially a quiet home affair, only the relatives of the contracting parties being present. After a brief honeymoon, young Mr. Fochetti and his bride will take apartments at the Hotel El Dorado.

The S. F. daily Chronicle and Index-Tribune $9 a year for both papers.

High School Students to Give Play.

The students of the Sonoma Valley Union High School have billed the town for a play at Union Hall on Saturday evening, June 4th. "The Strenuous Life" is the title of the play, all the characters of which will be sustained by the girl and boy students of the school.

ELECTROCUTED BY A LIVE WIRE.

Mrs. Ida Polloni Becomes Entangled in a Net Work of Electric Wires and is Instantly Killed

As a result of the terrific gale which swept the Sonoma Valley fore and aft last Sunday night and early Monday morning Mrs. Ida Polloni, residing near Agua Caliente, lost her life.

During the gale many of the electric light poles of the Sonoma Valley Company were prostrated, among them being one in a field on the Polloni ranch near Agua Caliente. Sparks from the prostrated wires set fire to the grass about 11 o'clock Monday morning. Mrs. Polloni, in the absence of the men folks, who were fighting the fire on another part of the ranch, seized a wet sack and commenced to beat out the flames from the burning grass. In doing so, the wet sack struck a live electric wire which was hidden from view in the tall growth of grass, and Mrs. Polloni fell to the ground writhing in agony. In her struggles another electric wire became entangled about the unfortunate woman's neck and she was electrocuted instantly.

P. G. Keil and George Goess, who happened along shortly after the accident, ran to the woman's assistance and dragged her out of danger, but too late to save her life.

Parties in a passing automobile from Santa Rosa witnessed the tragedy and hastening to Agua Caliente, where C. T. Ryland, the manager of the electric light company, with a force of men was engaged in repairing the line, and told him what they had seen.

Hastening to the prostrate woman's assistance, Mr. Ryland had her placed in his automobile and rushed her to Dr. Frederick Leix's sanitarium in this place, in the hopes that she could be resuscitated but when the doctor examined the woman the vital spark had fled.

Mrs. Polloni's body was badly seared by the live wires, the burn on the neck being the most pronounced.

The deceased was a native of Italy, aged 43 years and was the mother of five children.

HIS TRAGIC DREAM.

A Grim Ghost Story That Comes From the Netherlands.

The following remarkable ghost story is told of two brothers, members of a distinguished family in Friesland, a province of the Netherlands: The young men were officers in the same regiment, and their only fault—a certain rash valor, so different from the quiet prudence so characteristic of their nation—made their comrades almost idolize them.

These young officers were exceedingly anxious to see a ghost and took a great deal of pains to plunge into all sorts of gloomy places in the hope of finding them tenanted by beings from the other world. At last they seemed to find the orthodox old castle with its haunted room. Everybody bore witness to the horrible sights and sounds nightly to be seen and heard therein, and these young gentlemen determined to pass the night there.

It was Christmas eve, and they provided themselves with a good supper and a bottle of wine each, a fire, lights and loaded pistols. The hours wore on. No ghost was seen; no ghostly sounds were heard. The younger brother, wrapped closely in his warm cloak, laid his head on the table and deliberately resigned himself to a comfortable sleep. The elder brother, though exceedingly weary, determined to remain awake and await the issue of events.

After awhile a noise roused him from a reverie into which he had fallen. He raised his eyes and beheld the wall opening in front of his seat. Through the opening glided a tall figure in white, who signed him to follow.

The rose and followed the figure through long, damp, dark passages till they reached a large, brilliantly lighted room where a ball was going on. Above the strains of music and the din of voices pierced a strange, sharp, clicking sound, like the notes of castanets.

Bewildered and dazzled by this sudden transition from darkness and silence to this gay festive scene, it was some moments before he could collect his senses, but he was shocked by perceiving that these gayly dressed ladies and their richly uniformed cavaliers were skeletons, and the curious sound that impressed him so strangely was the clicking of fleshless jaws!

The figure at his side ordered him to take a partner from this hideous throng, which he refused to do. Irritated at this refusal, the figure raised his arm to strike, but the officer instantly leveled at him the pistol he had continued to grasp and discharged it full in his face.

With the shock and report he started to his feet. The white figure, the ballroom, the fearful, ghastly dancers, all had vanished, and he was in the room where he had supped, but his brother lay dying at his side.

He had shot him in his dream and awakened only to receive his last utterance. From that awful Christmas night he was an altered man. All the gayety had gone out of his life, all the sunshine had faded from his days, and after a few years of unrelenting anguish of remorse he found himself unable to bear the burden of his regrets and put an end to his life.

To Gauge His Wife's Temper. "I heard about a peculiar case of henpecked husband recently," said a young woman the other day.

"What was it?" her friend inquired. "There is a man who has some difficulty in gauging his wife's temper. At times she is considerate of his welfare, and at other times—well, he rather thinks that married life is a failure."

"He has a peculiar manner of finding out the state of his wife's feeling toward him. In the evening when he returns home from work he never steps into the house without going through a sort of ceremony. First he throws his hat in the house, and then he seats himself on the steps and waits. If five minutes pass without the hat being thrown out again he enters and generally finds his wife very agreeable. However, if the hat is thrown out again the unfortunate man seeks hospitality for the night somewhere else rather than brave the anger of his helpmeet."

The Fishing Otter. The otter used by Scottish poachers is one of the most deadly fishing instruments known. In some waters it is far more effective than a net. It may be described as a water kite, which serves to take out over the water a line bearing fifty or more flies. The otter itself is a floating piece of board leaded along one side to keep it upright. The poacher walks along the side of the loch or river, letting out the fly decorated line as he goes, the otter board gradually working out toward the center. An enormous area of water is fished at one time and numbers of fish are killed.

A Drop of Water. A gallon of distilled water weighs 8.339 pounds, and, there being four quarts to the gallon, and two pints to the quart, and sixteen fluid ounces to the pint, and two tablespoonfuls to the fluid ounce, and four teaspoonfuls to the tablespoon, and forty-five drops to the teaspoon, a drop of water weighs 0.00018057 pound, slightly more.

Another Creditor. Blobs—Harduppe says he owes everything to his wife. Slobbs—Harduppe is a double distilled prevaricator. He owes $10 to me.—Philadelphia Record.
